

Gilon Marts

Gilon Marts is a mental health professional who has called Jacksonville her home for over two decades. She is passionate about empowering people to make the sort of change that will impact not only their life but the generations to come. She has worked with youth in both academic and mental health settings to provide guidance and support through arguably some of the most difficult transitions they will face in their young lives. She holds a Bachelor's degree in Family Youth, and Community Sciences from the University of Florida and a Masters in Clinical Mental Health Counseling from the University of North Florida. Gilon currently works as a therapist, providing services to children and their families.
